

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0057] A method, system, and computer program processes for electronically delivering risk analyzed crucial information. The invention includes the electronic delivery of emergency information to individual recipient members of a constituency group and across unrelated constituency groups to provide the recipient members with information designed to assist the recipients in the protection of self and property, to provide for recipient well being and to minimize liability to recipients or third parties who accept liability on behalf of recipients. The information is obtained from a variety of sources which the system analyzes and prioritizes to provide the maximum benefit.